*GATHERING PSALM (Responsive)

Donna Rusk

Your unsayable name: it covers all the earth, and your presence extends ever outward
From the furthest conceivable point

Out of the mouths of babes who speak only wordless wondering words,
You fashion your incomprehensible power that gathers into silence all opposition

When I behold the night sky, the work of your fingers

The bright moon and the many-layered stars which you have established, I think:

A woman is so frail and you remember her

A man so small and you think of him

And yet in you woman and man become as angels, crowned with luminous presence

And you have given them care for the works of your hands

O you whom I am ever addressing,

Your unsayable name covers heaven and earth.

Psalms 8, Opening to You, Norman Fischer
