the COMPASS

“Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by.” R. Frost

Waiting to exhale . . .

I don't know if there was a collective sigh, breath, or exhale recently. But I have to say, as I return to work here at Covenant (after a summer of sabbatical) it feels as if more than a few folks have been waiting to exhale. I think I myself have been waiting to exhale. I could use a few deep breaths . . . in . . . and out.

As Geoff Wall's recent letter to the congregation recently addresses, there are some anxiety-producing issues presenting themselves to us these days. But with breath, there is hope:

- The roof is well on the way to being fully repaired, paid in full with generous gifts from the congregation! (Breathe . . .)
- Inside work of paint and repair will then be completed. (Breathe . . .)
- Weekly giving is ahead for the year, about 5% higher than this time last year! (Breathe . . .)
- The board is working on creating better lines of communication with the congregation, sharing both board reports and financial reports each month. (Breathe . . .)
- Some of us have already begun to plan for the program year, including education and fellowship activities for all ages, worship and spiritual growth opportunities through Advent and Christmas. (Breathe . . .)

This is a good time to remember that the word for “breath” in the Bible is the same word for Spirit and wind. It truly is an opportunity to inspire and take in the presence of God that brings peace and serenity to the anxious soul. One may think of breath as a way to take a sabbatical every moment. Pause, and let God in. Then see what possibilities present themselves. I think we'll find that the possibilities are limitless!

. . . and remembering to inhale.
